

Démodulation souple sous l'ère (Deep) AI

Le but de ce projet est d'étudier les méthodes de démodulation souple utilisée dans les systèmes modernes de communication et de comparer leur complexité et leur possibilité de parallélisation des traitements aux approches existences.

Encadrement: C. Poulliat (N7), A. Michon (N7), B. Gadat (ADS).

[1] Shental, Ori and Jakob Hoydis. ""Machine LLRning": Learning to Softly Demodulate." 2019 IEEE Globecom Workshops (GC Wkshps) (2019): 1-7.

[2] Zheng, Shilian et al. "DemodNet: Learning Soft Demodulation from Hard Information Using Convolutional Neural Network." ICC 2022 - IEEE International Conference on Communications (2020): 1-6.

[3] Xiao, Bowen et al. "Unified Deep Neural Demodulation Network Design for QAM Signal Recovery." 2023 IEEE 98th Vehicular Technology Conference (VTC2023-Fall) (2023): 1-5.

[4] Ullah, Arif et al. "Soft-Output Deep LAS Detection for Coded MIMO Systems: A Learning-Aided LLR Approximation." IEEE Transactions on Vehicular Technology 73 (2024): 13178-13192.

[5] C. Poulliat, "Exact soft demodulation architecture in the AI era", Research Report, September 2024.